Purpose / Background

Pupils entering Bradford Central PRU on prevention placements, generally have experienced significant and recent challenges in making educational progress within their mainstream school, and have low self-esteem in relation to being a successful pupil. Many pupils have underlying learning difficulties which can be heavily disguised by the display of acting out and work avoidance behaviours. Emotional fragility and lack of effective interpersonal and social skills may also contribute to a pupil's profile of personalised educational support needs.

Policy Objectives

Teaching learning and assessment within the centres must directly address the emotional, social and behaviour needs of pupils in such positive ways as to facilitate accelerated academic learning. Pupils must also anticipate success on return to their mainstream school; consequently teaching learning and assessment should facilitate this.

Procedures and Practices

- Pupils are immersed in a culture of high expectations and aspiration focussed on their particular entitlement to optimum success
- Personalisation of learning offers equality of opportunity and inclusion in the learning community of the PRU
- Learning takes place within a social context where personalisation offers scope, and opportunities, to maximise the quality of learning relationships between learners and all those involved in supporting them, including parents and fellow learners
- Pupils are given the opportunity to reflect on their behaviour to develop behaviours that support success
- Skills to support success in a mainstream education setting are a constant focus with the PRU
- Teaching learning and assessment strategies actively engage and challenge learners, and develop their ability to focus on their learning skills and their capabilities, to take ownership of their own progress
- Account is taken of pupils' prior learning and experiences and their current attitudes and anxieties
- The confidence and capacity of individual learners is enhanced – learners are empowered through:
 - giving the pupil a sense of their own efficacy and value as a learner;
 - developing personal skills and strategies to enable self-management and direction;
 - building a repertoire of learning strategies to offer a range of learning options;
 - developing skills for further study and employability.
- Equipping pupils with the skills of 'learning to learn' for example by:
 - self-management, organising time, workload and projects;
 - developing a sense of personal effectiveness as a learner using learning styles, developing effective learning behaviours, developing resilience and concentration;
 - building confidence in literacy, oracy and numeracy;
 - learning how to research, organise and present;
 - developing skills in analysing, explaining, justifying, demonstrating causality and developing a logical argument;
 - developing confidence in working with others, notably on a one to one basis and in small groups;
 - developing higher order thinking skills, learning to review and reflect.
- Assessment of learning is extended to assessment for learning. This implies:
 - negotiation of learning outcomes, determining relevant assessment criteria and the means of assessment;
 - agreement of who will assess what and how;
 - linking assessment with feedback, mentoring and progression.

- Through personalising learning pupils become active partners in their learning, capable of making authentic choices through:
 - involvement in planning and designing curriculum experiences;
 - participation in monitoring, review and evaluation procedures;
 - feedback to staff;
 - regular satisfaction and self report surveys.
- The quality of teaching learning and assessment is evidenced through:
 - appraisal and professional development review procedures of staff;
 - monitoring and reporting on the profile of learning outcomes achieved by individual pupils;
 - pupil progress tracking systems during and post placement;
 - the success of re-integration programmes as pupils complete their prevention placement.
